Disability Arts organisations and projects have been developing the skills and talents of disabled people for years. They've had to.

They've developed models of mentoring and peer support, training opportunities and informal ways to share practice, harnessed new technology and overcome geographical, financial and physical barriers.

They've been doing it for years, often without realising it. And actually they are really rather good at it.

This programme of two full day seminars, one in London and one in Manchester, holds a magnifying glass up to this work, showcasing nationally recognised models from which the whole arts sector can learn.

The venues for both events are physically accessible with parking available. BSL interpretation will be provided. If you require other access provisions, please let us know and we will do our best to help.

The CreativePeople Network involves 140 plus arts and cultural organisations grouped by geography, artform or interest into partnerships providing advice, information and guidance on professional development in the arts and crafts. These events are targeted at organisations within the network but will also be of interest to anyone involved in professional development, disability and the cultural industries.
